

Drawbridge up

Police Commissioner Karl O'Callaghan (Fortification laws apply only under strict rules, 11/4) outlined the two principal causes for seeking authorisation to have club "fortifications" removed.

These are that the building is fortified and that there is evidence of criminal activity.

In Perth there is a prominent building that has high walls and security cameras (fortified?) and a number of members have faced criminal charges over multimillion-dollar crimes.

The membership is exclusive and discriminatory to the point it challenges anti-discrimination laws.

This organisation? The Weld Club. Well, commissioner, where's your application?
